If you create an account on DineTime, we may store and use information such as your full name, email address, phone number, zip code, gender and birth date. You can always edit the information associated with your account via the DineTime App, or if you believe that an unauthorized account has been created using your name, or likeness, you can request its removal by emailing support@dinetime.com.

We may use a third-party intermediary to manage credit card processing. Such intermediary is contractually permitted to use your payment information solely to effect payment and for billing for the Services and any other purchases you may make through DineTime Host or our websites. You can always edit the information associated with your account using your log-in on dinetimehost.com or if you believe that an unauthorized account has been created, you can request its removal by emailing support@dinetime.com.

Public Content: We may add a social media component to the Services through which you may choose to post content (such as ratings, reviews, tips, photos or comments, likes, bookmarks, friends, lists) that may be shared with others through our Services. The information that you post to the Services is intended to be available for other users of DineTime to read, including your posted content, reviews about restaurants, and your account profile. Therefore, you agree that we may display this information on the Services, share it with businesses, and further distribute it to a wider audience through third party sites and services.

Contacts: You have the option to invite those of your friends that you think would like to join and use DineTime and the Services, by providing their contact information. If you invite a friend to join and connect with you on the Services, we will only use your friend's contact information to process your requests.

Communications: If you participate in a survey, poll, promotion, contest, or sweepstakes; submit a customer service or other inquiry to us; request to receive certain communications from us; we may collect contact information such as your name, address, email address, or telephone number as a result of your participation.

4. Your preferences and settings (time zone, language, etc.)
5. If you are using a mobile device, your mobile device's geographic location (specific geographic location if you've enabled collection of that information, or general geographic location automatically). Please see the section "How to Disable the Collection of Mobile Device Location Information" below for further information.

10. For mobile application users, the online or offline status of your application.

When a restaurant user uses the Services, we automatically collect and store all of the information noted above. Also, we will have all the information that you submit or provide with respect to your restaurant and customers through your account with us or through your other communications with DineTime Host or DineTime, such as notifications to a party, seatings of a party, messaging activity, restaurant layout, etc. ("Transactional Data").

Mobile Device Location Information. When an individual user uses one of our location-enabled services (for example, when you access Services from a mobile device), we may need to collect and process information about the user's actual GPS location (including the latitude, longitude or altitude of the user's mobile device) and the time the location information was recorded. Some of these services require your personal data for the feature to work and we may associate location data with your device ID and other information we hold about you. By using this particular feature, you consent to your data being used for this purpose. You can withdraw your consent at any time by disabling the relevant feature. If you do not want your location information collected when you use the Services from a mobile device, you should contact your device manufacturer or platform provider to determine how to disable the collection of this information.

Communication and Location Information. In connection with your use of the DineTime app, you, as an individual user, hereby expressly consent to receive communications from us and/or a restaurant or other third party via phone call, SMS text message, email or other method as determined by us or the restaurants. Such communications may relate to reservation confirmations, reminders, requests for feedback, no-show and cancellation confirmations or any other correspondence relating to your reservation, dining experience or use of the DineTime app. As discussed above, the App may use GPS locator technology to identify your current location, and may provide information, discounts or coupons from restaurants in your location. You are responsible for maintaining the necessary devices to access these communications and are responsible for all charges associated with any mobile devices and the data they use in connection with the DineTime app, including any communications related to the DineTime app. You can withdraw your consent at any time by disabling the GPS feature. If you do not want your location information collected when you use the Services from a mobile device, you should contact your device manufacturer or platform provider to determine how to disable the collection of this information. Disabling the GPS feature on your mobile device will limit the DineTime App Services that you can use.

Cookies, Mobile Device IDs and Online Advertising:

Cookies: We, and third parties with whom we partner, may use cookies, pixel tags, web beacons, mobile device IDs, "flash cookies" and similar files or technologies to collect and store information with respect to your use of the Services and third party websites. A cookie is a small text file that is stored on your computer or mobile device that enables us to recognize you (for example, as a registered user) when you visit our website, store your preferences and settings, enhance your experience by delivering content specific to your interests, perform research and analytics, track your use of our Services, and assist with security and administrative functions. Cookies may be persistent or stored only during an individual session.

A pixel tag (also called a web beacon or clear GIF) is a tiny graphic with a unique identifier, embedded invisibly on a webpage (or an online ad or email), and is used to count or track things like activity on a webpage or ad impressions or clicks, as well as to access cookies stored on users' computers. DineTime pixel tags are used to measure the popularity of our various pages, features and services. Advertising company pixel tags are used to measure the number of ad impressions and the performance of ads on our site, and to access the advertising company's cookies placed on your computer. Data analytics company pixel tags are used to aggregate information about our advertising and your engagement with our site for market research, product improvement, revenue tracking and advertising optimization. Third parties whose products or services are accessible or advertised through the Services, including social networking services, may also use cookies or similar tools, and we advise you to check their privacy policies for information about their cookies and other practices.

Online and Mobile Advertising: We may allow third parties to use Cookies on the Services to collect the same type of information for the same purposes as DineTime does for itself. Advertisers and advertising networks may place ads on our website and mobile applications. These companies as well as data analytics companies who service them may collect information, such as your computer's IP address, browser information, mobile device ID, and search queries, as you use our Services. These companies also may use cookies and pixel tags to collect data about you when you visit our site. Cookies from advertising companies enable them to track your activity across various sites where they display ads and record and associate your activities, so they can show ads that they consider relevant to you. We do not, as a matter of course, have access to, or control over the Cookies these third parties use, but you may be able to opt-out of some of their practices by visiting the links listed below. Please note however that opting out will not stop the display of advertisements to you. These companies do not have access to any Transactional Data.

We currently use the following cookies:

Google: Our public facing website uses Google Analytics Demographics and Interest Reporting, which uses cookies to help us to track which pages are accessed. This allows us to understand how popular our site is and record visitor trends over time. The cookies contain no personally identifiable information but some of them do use your IP address to help determine where in the world you are accessing the site from and to track pages you visit within the site. You may opt out at <https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout>

AdRoll: Our public facing website uses AdRoll cookies to provide targeting advertising content based on your browsing choices. If you do not wish to receive this type of tailored advertising, you can visit <https://www.networkadvertising.org/choices/> to opt out of most online ad networks that use such advertising, including AdRoll.

HubSpot: Our public facing website uses HubSpot cookies to manage, provide, and enhance your web experience. To opt out of this type of tracking, you can use a private browser like Chrome's Incognito Mode or Firefox's Private Browsing feature. You can also utilize a browser add-on like Ghostery or BetterPrivacy.

Opting out of targeted advertising and marketing will not prevent you from seeing ads entirely, but the ads will no longer be delivered to you via targeting methods. You can also control the receipt of Cookies through your browser's settings. Please note that some of our services may not function properly if Cookies are disabled.

Advertising companies may also use and store your mobile device ID to track your use of the Services, track the number of ads displayed, measure ad performance and show ads that they consider relevant to you in various mobile services that you use. If you are using an iOS device and you do not want to receive tailored in-application ads that relate to your interests, you may opt-out by accessing the following link on your device: <http://oo.apple.com>.
